I think discretion could have been used with regards to taking my child on holiday during term time.	It is school policy that term time holidays have to be unauthorised except in very exceptional circumstances. This approach is applied to all requests for holiday. This way there can be no blurred lines around what is authorised and what isn't.
Sometimes the amount of homework can be too much.	As a school we try to ensure that the homework is kept to a reasonable amount as we know many children have clubs to attend after school and at weekends. It's a very hard balance to strike however it is there to prepare pupils for the realities of homework when they eventually reach high school.
We would like different types of clubs offered at Healey.	Over the course of a year pupils are offered a wide range of different after school sporting clubs. All of which are free.
Better communication and more of it.	We understand that communication can be a hard to get right. We try our best to send out text messages several days in advance of events happening although accept that there have been some instances where short notification has happened. A school newsletter goes out fortnightly highlighting events and changes which are taking place in school. We have also spent a lot of time over the last year working on the school website to ensure it is up to date and relevant.
Unsure of how much encouragement is given to be healthy or eat healthily.	There are always healthier options for pupils to choose at lunchtime and they are encouraged to choose items for the salad bar each day.
